Environmental consequences of burning of garden waste and household waste

All Hallow's Eve is approaching and households participate in this festival by preparing witches, wizards and goblins, glowing lanterns and tricks or treats. However, something more sinister is slowly creeping into the time-old tradition of lighting bonfires to celebrate Halloween, reports Dr. Mary Stack of the Environmental Awareness & Research Unit of Cork County Council.

Where traditionally wood and straw were used for bonfires, there is now increasing evidence that individuals are using Halloween as an opportunity to dispose of waste illegally. Do not use this festive time to dispose of waste illegally. Remember, Backyard Burning is illegal and may result in prosecution.

Bonfire smoke causes problems for asthmatics, bronchitis sufferers, people with heart conditions and children. This is well-documented by the Environmental Protection Agency. Burning plastic or painted materials not only creates an unpleasant smell but also produces a range of poisonous compounds.

The EPA reports that tyres in particular are frequently burnt on bonfires, even though they produce toxic fumes, releasing dioxins into the air damaging our health and the environment. Burning waste material contributes to over 50 per cent of all dioxin emissions in Ireland (EPA www.epa.ie).

Other sources of smoke increase in the autumn time when home-owners start cutting back hedges and clearing vegetation in their gardens. Due to the lovely fine spell in October, Dr. Mary Stack wishes to remind the public on the law relating to the practice of burning of vegetation.

Burning garden waste produces smoke, especially if it is damp and smouldering.

Smoke prevents your neighbours from enjoying their gardens, opening windows or hanging washing out, and reduces visibility in the neighbourhood and on roads.

As many home-owners now grow their own vegetables in their gardens in a sustainable manner, they do not wish to be exposed to air pollutants from their neighbours unauthorised activity of backyard burning.

Untidy areas in the garden are often used as a refuge by wildlife and as hibernation zones. By burning these areas, you are impacting on your gardens biodiversity and these safe zones for over-wintering animals.

Dr. Stack says there are lots of alternatives available to the public to allow for the safe disposal of their garden waste. Our recycling centres accept the garden waste for a low fee. Garden shredders will reduce the volume of garden waste and provide you with mulch. Save you leaf mould for improving the soil in flower and vegetables beds.

Kitchen green waste may be composted and food waste can be collected by your waste service provider or try a green cone food digester or wormery. You can also drop off food waste to your local recycling centre which is a new service offered by the Council. Backyard burning of household waste is an outdated and anti-social practice.

Dr. Stack brings your attention to regulations prohibiting [see below advert] and making it an explicit offence to dispose of waste by uncontrolled burning, including such disposal within the curtilage of a dwelling. The smoke, smuts, and smell from unlawful bonfires should be reported to your local authority for investigation.

The Environmental Awareness Unit provides guide notes and booklets on composting and these are available on the Council's website to assist the public – www.corkcoco.ie.

Burning YOUR Waste is Polluting YOUR Environment

It's time to change your habits and start disposing of your waste in a safe manner.

Make the change yourself before a fine makes you change your mind.

STATUTORY INSTRUMENTS: S.I. No.286 of 2009

WASTE MANAGEMENT (PROHIBITION OF WASTE DISPOSAL BY BURNING)
REGULATIONS 2009

"... these Regulations include the prohibition of the disposal of waste by burning and the prevention of environmental pollution by such disposal."

BACKYARD BURNING

A number of people still rely on burning as a traditional form of waste management. This is no longer acceptable as it poses a threat to our environment and human health.

The following practices are examples of backyard burning:

- Burning waste in a barrel or exposed heap (bonfire) in a yard or garden
- Burning in a purchased ready made "home incinerator" *
- Burning commercial waste on a business premises or farmyard
- Burning waste on a building site

All of these are illegal under the Waste Management (Prohibition of Waste Disposal by Burning) Regulations 2009.

The above burning activities are also legislated for by the Waste Management Acts 1996 to 2011 and the Air Pollution Act 1987. The Waste Management legislation makes it an offence to:

Dispose of waste in a manner that is likely to cause Environmental Pollution.

Cork County Council (Storage, Presentation and Collection of Household and Commercial Waste) Bye-Laws 2014 require Householders to be able to prove how they dispose of their waste. Provision is made for an on-the-spot fine of €75 for breaches of the Bye-Laws.

The Air Pollution Legislation makes it an offence to:

Cause or permit emissions (including smoke and odours) from your premises in a manner that will cause a nuisance.

People are also advised that the causing of a nuisance may give rise to a civil action against the person causing the nuisance.

Cork County Council has brought successful prosecutions for these activities under the Air Pollution and Waste Management legislation and will continue to do so in the future.
