HEAR, LISTEN TO THIS!

Hearing loss, to some degree, is something that is likely to effect most of us as we get older. Egan's Hearing, located on 5-6 Lavitt's Quay, Cork with clinics around Munster including Kinsale, has some advice on symptoms and what can be done to help.

Presbycusis is the loss of hearing that gradually occurs in most individuals as they get older. Hearing loss is commonly associated with ageing. About 30-35% of adults between the ages of 65 and 75 years have a hearing loss. It is estimated that 40-50% of people 75 years and older have a hearing loss.

The loss associated with presbycusis is usually greater for high-pitched sounds. For example, it may be difficult for someone to hear the nearby ringing of a telephone. However the same person may be able to hear clearly the low pitched sound of a truck rumbling down the street.

There are many causes of presbycusis. Most commonly it arises from changes in the inner ear of a person as he or she ages. Presbycusis most often occurs in both ears, affecting them equally. Because the process of loss is gradual, people who have presbycusis may not realise their hearing is diminishing.

Inserting anything into your ears, including cotton buds, is not advisable under any circumstances. If you notice any changes at any age in your hearing (ie: sudden loss, blocked feeling, sensitivity to noise, needing the volume turned up on the TV or radio), then it's time to get your hearing tested by a professional audiologist.

A hearing test is a painless procedure where the audiologist presents beeping sounds through a pair of headphones and the patient indicates at what level they hear the tones. Egan's Hearing also offers tinnitus solutions to those people who suffer from the condition. Tinnitus is a ringing, buzzing type sound in the ear.

It is recommended that everyone over the age of 55 has a hearing test every three years to rule out any hearing loss. If you have any concerns or would like a free hearing test contact us on 021 4276414.

Egan's Hearing now also offer

HEALTH, HAIR & BEAUTY

The art of Feng Shui

is an ancient Chinese practice that applies to spaces where we live and work, and offers enormous satisfactions and well-being for all those who occupy those spaces.

Based on cardinal measurements and mathematical calculations this technique seeks the balance between space and it's inhabitants.

Bringing Feng Shui closer to our life will encourage changes and improve situations we are not happy with.
